To exist is to reflect and consider. One meets oneself, one sees a trajectory, a certain possible path into what is yet unknown, recalling histories, detecting patterns, weaving the fabric of existence out of every moment. And for each of us, as for every community, village, tribe, nation, the story we tell ourselves is crucial to who we are, who we are becoming.

~Susan Griffin

Who thought November would be upon us this soon? The leaves are falling rapidly now. The days, once overheated and wet are considerably cooler. Papers and projects that once seemed a long way off are now knocking at the door, with deadlines fast approaching. This is a season that calls for both reflection and for activity. It’s not always easy to do both.

For those with an advanced education, this call to reflect and consider is one that seeks to be woven into our very lives. To be educated means to think, and to think deeply and critically. To think with the perspective of the educated means to consider what needs to be done and to do it. Thinking never stops with itself. The consideration we give to researching, data gathering, listening, seeking out a variety of perspectives all has purpose and hopefully has direction. It is not enough to know, though knowing that is based in evidence and integrity is necessary: necessary but not sufficient. We are called upon to enact our informed knowing. We are called to do.

Here at Alverno College, one of the foundational abilities that we value is the ability of effective citizenship. Every undergraduate who walks these halls is required to demonstrate the ability that is involved in being an effective citizen. The Advanced levels of this ability require that we work effectively within the civic and/or professional realm and that we test our ideas about how to solve problems and then come up with ways to solve them. There is no room in this ability for empty ranting or blameful finger pointing to any person, culture or life stance. There is room for the careful consideration that recalls histories, detects patterns, and examine the stories that we tell ourselves. This is what brings us to mindful action.

In the coming week, this particular action is to vote. This is one basic civic duty that we can easily engage; a simple action that has profound potential impact. When the informed vote, when those who have taken the time to reflect on how “the story we tell ourselves is crucial to who are and who we are becoming” vote, the results mean a great deal. Reflect and consider and engage in action that will change negative stories into positive ones and create a world where we can all live, breathe and have our being.

Oh, and don’t forget to register for classes for next semester!

Call for Proposals: Empowering Women

Alverno Community Conference
Empowering Women
March 29, 2019

CALL FOR PROPOSALS
October 15 – November 19, 2018

The annual Alverno Community Conference invites faculty, staff, students, alums, and the greater Milwaukee community to create opportunities for dialogue and exchange around a central, interdisciplinary theme. For 2019, the conference will focus on the theme, Empowering Women. We invite you to submit a proposal. We are seeking presentations from multiple disciplines and perspectives that are: relevant, offer differing world views, encourage dialogue and engage a diverse audience. With your assistance, we hope to create opportunities for thought provoking workshops related to women’s issues and concerns to challenge attendees in complex and meaningful ways.

Please use the online form to submit your proposals. Presentation options include: 45 minute workshop, 60 minute workshop or poster session. More information on the conference can be found on the conference website.

Contact Julie Borgealt by email or phone: 414-382-6435 with questions.

Feel free to share this request for proposals with your contacts who are involved in women’s issues and would be interested in our Empowering Women theme.

Empowering Women in Technology

Thursday, December 6
6 - 7:30 p.m.
Bucyrus Conference Center, Sister Joel Read Center
Alverno College
3400 South 43 Street
Milwaukee, WI 53219

It has been long known that there is a need for more women in technology. Not only does a significant gender gap exist, but women in the field face a number of obstacles to success, including persistent gender bias in the workplace. Our panel of experts, all of whom work in information technology, will explore the barriers to entry for women in tech and discuss ways to knock them down. Whether you’re starting your career in tech or are a veteran, we invite you to join us for an evening of conversation about how to empower women to succeed.

Presenters include:

- Heidi Holdener, Director of Business Development
  Trissential
- Latricia Johnson, Director of Curriculum & Support Services
  School District of Beloit
- Tacey Lenyard ‘14, Systems Software Engineer

Stephani Richards-Wilson, Ph.D.
Director of MBA and Organizational Development
Dr. Stephani Richards-Wilson graduated with her bachelor’s and master’s degrees from Marquette University and holds two doctorates. Her first is in Leadership Studies with an emphasis in Business Education from the University of San Diego. Her dissertation dealt with the benefits of an MBA degree and her research has been published in peer-reviewed publications both in the US and abroad. Her second doctorate is in German from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and her dissertation focused on Nazi resister, Willi Graf of the White Rose. Prior to arriving at Alverno, she served as Assistant Dean for Student Recruitment and Retention in the College of Arts and Sciences at Marquette University and Director of the MBA Program at the University of San Diego. She has worked, studied, and conducted research abroad both in academic and professional settings. Prior to her academic career, she worked as an International Marketing Specialist for Nalge Company in New York, manufacturer of plastic labware and NALGENE water bottles. For years, she held the toughest job in the Navy as a Navy wife while her husband Rick served in the submarine force.

Get to Know the MBA Faculty: Linda Olszewski

Linda Olszewski is an associate professor of business and the director of undergraduate programs in the Business Division of the School of Professional Studies. She joined Alverno College as full-time faculty in 2012. She currently teaches such topics as managerial accounting and finance, operations and supply chain management, and quantitative business modeling courses both in the undergraduate business program and the MBA program. As a member of the Assessment Council for Student Learning, her work guides and informs assessment practices across the college. She also currently serves as a consultant to other higher education institutions across the country on assessment design, learning outcomes, criteria and feedback.

Before teaching at Alverno College, Olszewski worked for AT&T. During her 15-year career with AT&T, she led teams of software architects, designed system architecture as lead architect on regional and enterprise-level projects, managed vendor relations, led joint efforts with the business to develop, manage and measure sustainable growth initiatives, performed strategic planning, managed IT operations, and as a member of the IT portfolio finance team, worked with the executive leadership team on IT budget planning, forecasting, and performance reporting. She is an alumna of Alverno College where she received both her Bachelor of Arts in Business and her MBA.

Contribute YOUR News!
If you have a new position, made a presentation, received an honor, or have other news to share, please send the details to your program director:

Dr. Rachel Reinders graduated from UW-Milwaukee with a degree in Counseling Psychology, after completing her Master's degree in Community Counseling there as well. She is a Licensed Professional Counselor (LPC) and a Nationally Certified Counselor (NCC).

Rachel currently works at Psychological Assessment Services, LLC, completing psychological evaluations. She has clinical experience in inpatient psychiatric populations, community clinics, and substance abuse clinics. She is bilingual in Spanish and has made it a priority to provide culturally and linguistically competent care for monolingual Spanish-speaking clients.

Rachel has two kids, a dog, and a cat, and she enjoys reading and biking.

Internship Applications Due

If you intend to start internship in the Summer or Fall of 2019, you must submit an application now. You must go through the application process and be approved by faculty before you may secure an internship. Applications will be due November 15 to be eligible to begin in Summer or Fall 2019.

Counselors for Social Justice Student Organization

The possibility of beginning a student chapter of the Counselors for Social Justice organization is being considered. If you are interested in learning more about this opportunity or becoming a part of the group, please attend an informational meeting at 12:15 p.m. on Saturday, November 3 in Founders Hall room 161A (one of the conference rooms in the cafeteria). Please feel free to bring a lunch!

Bilingual Peer Supervision Group?

Do you speak a second language and hope to use that language in your future counseling practice? Rachel Reinders would like to start a peer supervision or support group for students who want to or plan to conduct therapy in a language other than English. Please reach out to her at Rachel.Reinders@alverno.edu if you are interested in participating in this group.

Advising

Just a reminder that you are now able to register for the spring semester! If you need help choosing your courses for spring, please reach out to Rachel or Sandy.

American Psychological Association Conference

The 2019 APA conference will be held in Chicago in August! If you are interested in attending, you can start making plans now. This is going to be a great opportunity since it will be so close to Milwaukee! If you are interested in submitting a topic for a roundtable discussion or collaborating on a poster please contact Rachel. Keep it in mind when making plans for next summer! There are often opportunities for student members to volunteer, and student rates for this conference have been reasonable in the past.
Five questions to get to know the MCP instructors a little better! Suggestions for future questions are always welcome. This week’s faculty member: Sandra Graham

1. What would you say is your clinical specialty? My main area of practice is in working with women and with LGBTQ populations. I have also worked and continue to work with clergy and others with religious vocations. In my work with those who experience depression, anxiety and a variety of existential crises, I have used both cognitive behavioral and insight focused therapies. I work within a developmental model of counseling, drawing upon client strengths and an awareness of the systems that impact areas of need. I have also integrated knowledge and engagement in social justice perspectives into my practice. While I recently retired from my counseling practice, I carry these values into other areas of consultation.

2. How did you get into community psychology? Community psychology is a “natural” for me. For my entire professional life (first as a clergy woman and then as a psychologist) I have been interested and involved in ways that neighborhoods, communities and social systems affect people’s well-being. As a significant voice in the development of this community psychology program, I was interested in how we as clinicians learn how to integrate our counseling/clinical knowledge with the knowledge of other paradigms of those working to promote mental health. It is important to me that we all learn each others’ “language” of healing. Therefore, knowing how nurses, doctors, psychologists, psychiatrists, school personnel, politicians, religious professionals and counselors among others know how to communicate with each other for the purpose of helping those who experience mental health issues.

3. What do you like to do outside of work? I have several hobbies. I love camping, “cottaging” and canoeing. I really love being near and on and in water. I enjoy taking walks, especially in these days when the fall colors are so beautiful. I play the guitar (women’s and folk music) and I love to sing. I enjoy painting (both acrylic and water color) and I write poetry. I also love a good novel now and then.

4. What is one of your goals right now? I am planning to retire this coming year and my first goal is to spend time doing the things I enjoy doing when I’m not presently working. I also am and will be working with my denomination (United Church of Christ) in developing and delivering curriculum for ministerial readiness.

5. Favorite ice cream? Such a difficult choice as I am a broad-spectrum ice cream lover. At the moment I would say Butter Pecan, but there’s also nothing like a good Vanilla and I am a big fan of Purple Door’s Lemon Cardamom ice cream.

November CliftonStrengths Discovery Sessions

The Alverno Alumnae Office and Human Resources has sponsored Strengths Discovery sessions for the past three years, involving close to 150 persons. Participants identify their 5 Signature Themes through the CliftonStrengths Assessment, (formerly StrengthsFinder) and discover how they empower their life. All are welcome: alums, spouses, friends, as well as current and retired Alverno employees. To meet the interests of both new and experienced participants we will offer split sessions focusing on Talent Identification and Strengths Development.

These topics below will meet the needs of beginners and those returning. We will offer an opportunity for those who have had more experience with strengths to explore their more mature use as well as be introduced to the new assessment, BUILDER PROFILE 10 (BP 10). Builder broadens the landscape of both entrepreneurs and innovators.

Date: Wednesday, November 14, 2018
Time: 5:00-7:30 p.m.
Location: Alverno College - FO 146 and FO 148
Beginner Topic: Benefits of focusing on your strengths to explore how to engage your strengths to become your best self.
Advanced Topic for returnees: “What are you building?”, the opening line in Gallup’s latest book, BORN TO BUILD which includes Builder Profile 10 assessment ($19.99). If interested check www.gallup.com/builder

Tips and Tricks for Registering on IOL

1. When you're ready to register, go to http://www.alverno.edu/ and click on the CURRENT STUDENTS tab near the top of the screen. Then under Online Resources, click on IOL (Interactive Online).

2. Click on the LOG IN tab located at the top of the screen (note: your username and password are the same as the ones for logging into your Alverno email account, the DDP, etc.), then click on the blue Students Menu tab on the right-hand side of the screen.

3. NEW! You can get your Registration date & time on IOL. Look under Registration, and then click on Registration Time.

If you're not sure whether a specific course is offered in the semester for which you're registering, you may start with the Search for Classes link on the upper right-hand side of the screen, also under where it says Registration.

4. Otherwise, you may use the Search and Register option. Once on this page, remember to select the term and two additional fields (I usually choose Subject and Course Level), then hit SUBMIT. For example, I selected the Spring 2012 term, CIT for the subject, and 600-Graduate for the course level. These criteria yielded two results: CIT-631 and CIT-660. You can then select the course/section you'd like to register for and hit SUBMIT.
5. You will then be directed to the Add/Drop Selected Sections screen. This is where you choose the Action for the selection. Note: there are two places where you may choose the Action, depending on how many courses you are registering for at one time.

6. Once you hit Submit, you will receive an email from webreg, congratulating you on your registration.

7. After you complete the registration process, make sure to check your schedule on IOL for accuracy. You can find this on the right-hand side of the CURRENT STUDENTS MENU (see figure 3), under Academics, then Class Schedule.

8. In addition to consulting with your advisor about class selection, you should also check your Academic Evaluation for your program requirements. This can also be found on the CURRENT STUDENTS MENU, under Academics (again, see figure 3).

9. For questions or concerns, there are several resources on IOL. First, there is the FAQ option: for General Help, for Getting Started, and for Students. Just click on the FAQ link located at the top of the screen. Second, there is the CONTACT US link also located at the top of the screen. Once you click on that, you'll have a choice of departments to get your questions answered. Finally, you can come to campus or call with questions: Academic Advising 414-382-6029, Registrar's Office 414-382-6370, or the Computer Center 414-382-6336.
Operation Chemo Comfort supports patients during their chemo treatments. The hats from our SPRING drive were distributed to patients at Froedtert and the Medical College of Wisconsin. Now it is time to collect WINTER hats.

WHAT CAN YOU DO???

- Knit, crochet or sew hats and scarves.
- Some patients develop skin sensitivity during chemo treatments so the yarns and fabric should be soft.
- The head coverings will be distributed over the Fall and Winter so Froedtert has requested heavier weight fabrics and yarns. Yarns made of cotton, silk, linen, bamboo or blends work well. Soft cotton, cotton blends, quilting cotton or fleece fabrics are best for hats. All colors are welcome.
- Operation Chemo Comfort has received feedback from the hospitals indicating that patients prefer caps over scarves.
- No loom hats please.
- Any pattern will work. If you need ideas you can check Pinterest or email Mary at mary.reese@alverno.edu.
- Drop hats off in AF 208. Mary Reese is collecting the hats.

Deadline: December 1
